Just the two of us

...a whole host of things to do for two!

For most couples, spending time together includes plenty of activities which are less than romantic. Whether that's trailing around the supermarket, filing bills or vacuuming the stairs, it can be easy to overlook the value of spending quality time together. If you want to ensure that you enjoy some of the special moments that strengthen a relationship, then sharing an experience is a great way to do it.

All these experiences have been chosen to ensure that you both have a fantastic time, but every couples' idea of fun is slightly different, which is why there is such a variety to choose from. You might be the kind of couple who love to push themselves to the limits, in which case you might want to try your hand at white water rafting where you will have to battle against the rapids and work as a team to control your boat and avoid capsizing.

If you both enjoy an adrenaline rush but prefer something a little more controlled, then indoor skydiving could be the perfect choice for you. Jumping into a wind tunnel which replicates the feeling of free-falling to earth from a plane is the ideal way to combine a real thrill with the reassurance of a secure environment.

For couples who share a love of fast cars, there are options which will really get your heart racing. These include the high speed circuit ride and the Radical passenger ride, both of which will expose you to unbelievably fast acceleration and the thrill of having a professional putting these incredible cars through their paces.

If you are looking for something soothing rather than stimulating then you can choose from one of the spa treatments which are specifically designed to help you unwind and release any tension you might feel. Whether you want the solitude of a spell in a floatation tank or something a little more sociable with a day at a spa together with a choice of treatments, there is something to appeal to any couple that need to recharge their batteries.

Many couples fall into a routine which means they rarely spend nights out together, whether they are too tired after a week at work or just because they find it hard to motivate themselves to organise something. These hassle free options mean that everything is already organised, you just have to pick a date, put your glad rags on and enjoy some of the finest entertainment on offer. From a night at an outdoor proms concert, to a wine tasting evening, there is something to suit anyone's taste. If you want something really unusual then a meal at Ruthin Castle has a touch of class that you're sure to appreciate.

Active couples who like the challenge of trying something new will love the opportunity to try their hand at sailing on some of the UK's stunning waterways, whether that's with a hands-on experience such as learning to sail, or a more leisurely option such as a trip on a barge or a lunch cruise.

If walking pace is more your speed, then taking a romantic walk together in some of the most beautiful countryside that the country has to offer is sure to give you plenty of opportunity to enjoy each other's company. You can even leave everything behind for an overnight walking break so that you can explore a completely different part of the country and make some memories together.
